"No man is an island" without permitting himself to be so. When one chooses to isolate himself to the world and people around him, one ceases to grow. People grow through others, whether the teacher be a child or an adult; without people we do not experience the true meaning of life. Within the past year we have seen various accomplishments fulfilled. Whether great or small, ambitions have been attained. Through group or individual efforts each goal was gained with the aid and understanding from people who surround us. Without personal attention a community project might never have existed. People need each other. Without others, our school life and the world that evolves around us could not be.

Present in human beings is an inner drive that compels them to strive for the top. An individual's achievements may seem his own, but nothing can be accomplished by one person. Someone in the past has offered encouragement or consolation. To that person one owes gratitude. Not only goals but everyday activities need the help of others. Proud parents stand beside the son whom they have urged to meet his ambitions. The student appreciates the guidance of one who has already walked a similar road. We not only receive encouragement and aid, but we stand in the position to give it to those around us. To share with others is to help each other live. No man is an island . . .

BICYCLE BUILT FOR TWO enables senior Charlene Stribiak and junior John Idzik to travel around town in an old method of transportation rapidly gaining popularity. English racers, 3 and 10-speed bikes and tandems became a familiar sight on city streets.

WITH SUMMER FINALLY HERE, one can occasionally stroll along the streets or parks and find individuals participating in a game of frisbee, as is Jackie Zweig. Many students and teachers await summer, and its arrival is greeted wholeheartedly.

AFTER A LONG RIDE with barbecue grills strapped to their bikes and food stuffed into baskets, Midge Mauger and Yolanda Groves enjoy a picnic with their friends.

SPRINGTIME INSPIRES THOUGHTS which senior Ed Johnson chooses to express in the form of music.

Pupils obtain satisfaction from hobbies

BANJO PLAYING during spare time has earned C. Usinger membership into Showteens, a well-known musical group.

Fascinating hobbies, ranging from candle-making to laser beams to taxidermy, consumed the spare time of inventive Morton students. Forgetting about homework, pupils relaxed and occupied extra hours while broadening their areas of interest.

Tree leaves turned golden and Hessville Park became the sight of Sunday afternoon football games. Boys and girls came outside to participate in a rough game of tackle or cheer on the sidelines.

During the long winter nights creative girls took up their needles to knit a scarf or crochet an afghan. Knot-tiers attempted macrame; sewers tried needlepoint. Fashioning their own patterns, students added individual touches to their attire or made money by selling their projects to others.

Car repairs, minor adjustments and paint jobs acted as a pastime for interested auto mechanics. Spare time found boys tinkering in garages seeking louder engines and "souped-up" exteriors.

Music has always been a soothing hobby for the talented — whether they be strumming the banjo strings or gliding over the keys of a piano. Some students relied on the music of the masters or old folk ballads to express themselves. Others possessed the ability to compose their own music.

Ecological-minded students pedaled for need or leisure. Whether it be riding around the block or a long-range journey, biking grew in popularity.

FIRST COAT OF PRIMER applied by senior Larry Dmltruck to the chassis helps to prevent rust and corrosion. Larry took the chassis and assembled it to the body of a '48 Ford Coupe. He built the coupe in his backyard during spare time.

HOMEMADE CREATIONS of animal-shaped candles enable senior Pat Walkowiak to while away her extra time.

BEDROOM TURNED WORKROOM, provides Ray Lichtenhan with the needed space to work on his laser beam.

DISPLAYING SPECIMENS in the library, David Swank admires the results of his taxidermy skills acquired while in Nigeria.

Spirit shines through homecoming rain

BLASTS OF AIR, donated by workers, gave fullness to the balloons illustrating the car theme, "Blow 'Em".

Rain drastically changed the plans for Homecoming 1971. Late on Friday the student body learned that the game and parade had been postponed until the next day. Mass confusion reigned as students adjusted schedules to accommodate the weather.

Juniors and seniors skipped school as they frantically worked on their floats to meet the final deadline. The rain gave them a welcomed 24-hour extension to complete construction.

"Sy Walker" performed at the October 8 homecoming dance. Governor tradition fell aside when the choice of queen was revealed at the dance instead of during half-time ceremonies.

Saturday found homecoming participation still alive as students prepared for the annual parade and the game between Morton and Bishop Noll. Starting at 6 p.m. the parade proceeded from the school and circuted throughout the Hessville area.

During half-time the queen and her court were presented to the spectators. Morton's victory over Bishop Noll happily terminated the wet and confusing homecoming festivities for 1971.

HOMECOMING COURT—, Bille Browning, Bob Westerfield, Janet Hendrix, Kevin Boyle, queen Beth Constant, Jim Miskovich, Dede O'Drobinak, Jerry Bocken, Colette Stark, Dick Culp, Ronni Vela, Tom Reba. The court was introduced during half-time.

SCORES OF TISSUE FLOWERS, chicken wire, papier-mache and hard work went into construction of the senior float.

DESPITE THE DRIZZLE, Beth Constant and her escort Jim Miskovich happily await the start of the parade.

by revising rules on male formal garb

On May 13, after a hectic day of hair dressers, tuxedo rentals and florists, students and guests drove 23 miles to Crete, Illinois, for the 1971-72 Morton Prom. Temporarily transformed into a sort of dream palace, the Holiday Inn was to harbor dreams and fond memories for many students.

Enchanted by the music of Johnnie Nowlan, couples spent several hours waltzing through the spring garden created from crepe paper streamers and topiary trees prior to the after-prom. The construction of a water fountain depicting youth symbolized the theme, "We've Only Just Begun."

Upswinging the tempo of the affair, "Jacob Grim" entertained until 2 a.m. Prom-goers loosened ties and kicked off their shoes while dancing to the rock music, interrupted only by the serving of dinner and the presentation of prom tokens.

Swimming and a day of frisbee followed as students convened upon beaches and parks to picnic. Boys then journeyed home to return rented tuxedos as their dates hung their prom gowns in the closet.

ANTICIPATION SPARKLES in the eyes of senior Robin O'Neal as she awaits an enjoyable evening at the prom.

SOFT LIGHTS and formal attire set the mood as Stephanie Fozkos and alumnus Jeff Stevenson arrive at the prom.

Antique flicks attract Inaugural couples;

W.C. Fields, Charlie Chaplin, Buster Keaton and many others typify famous actors of an age gone by. Movies and posters brought these stars of the "golden era" into Morton's cafeteria for the 1971 Inaugural Ball, "Memories are Made of This".

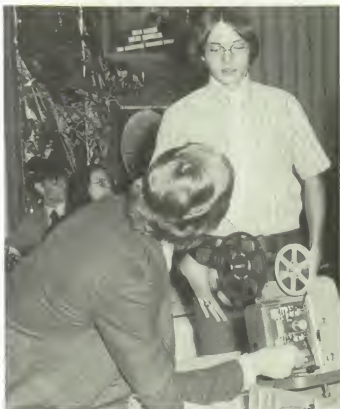

Association members worked long and hard to make the Inaugural a success. Trips to Chicago found students searching for appropriate decorations to illustrate the theme. Students utilized study halls and after-school hours to complete centerpieces, chandeliers and other ornaments.

Eight millimeter projectors, operated by student volunteers, transformed strips of film into typical scenes from the twenties and thirties. Posters added a special effect to the overall atmosphere.

Conqueror Worm, back-up group for Jefferson Airplane, B.B. King, Cream and Iron Butterfly, provided the musical entertainment for the nostalgic evening. Those attending the Inaugural Ball feasted on hor'doeuvres and punch.

If couples found themselves tired of old flicks, posters and Conqueror Worm they moved to the Association office where they listened to Orson Welles' 1939 broadcast of "War of the Worlds".

OLD-FASHIONED MOVIES operated by Terry Bocken and Jim Knaver provide a lively atmosphere at Inaugural Ball.

assemblies offer break in daily routine

Speeches by administration and student officials greeted freshmen during Orientation, September 4. Student guides conducted tours through large unfamiliar halls and empty classrooms.

"Love Makes the World Go Round" provided the musical atmosphere for presentation of the homecoming queen candidates. Each girl replied to a question about a unique "spirit" situation.

"I could not realize . . . how heavy and constant would be those burdens," a quote from John F. Kennedy, developed into one of the themes used in President Bruce Roquet's Inaugural Address.

Recognition of indoor events became a reality in the first sports assembly. Members of basketball, swimming and wrestling teams participated.

Anticipation of the holidays heightened with Santa's visit during the Christmas assembly. Familiar songs were remembered by choralers.

Without leaving the auditorium Governors traveled to the country of Greece via a movie projector, a screen and a film by Mr. Ted Bumillel.

OATHS OF OFFICE taken during the annual Inaugural Assembly Initiated Association members into their new positions.

VISIONS OF CHILDREN happily opening gifts come to Santa Claus Mike Clinton's mind, while he reminisces about previous Christmases during the annual Choral Christmas Concert.

'Romeo and Juliet' sets romantic mood;

Pupils and parents viewed an all-student interpretation of "Romeo and Juliet" in April and May. Enactment of the play set the mood for freshmen who studied this Shakespearean work. English II teachers required classes to see the play.

"Woodland Christmas," performed before the Yuletide vacation, depicted animals' view of Christmas. The characters befriended Hans Brinker, who helped them stage a holiday in their forest. Actors gave special presentations of "Woodland Christmas" for grade school pupils and freshmen.

On February 3, 4, and 5, the drama department presented "Rags to Riches," a story of Ragged Dick battling the evil Mother Watson. Happily ending, Dick finally obtained wealth and found a home for his friend, another young orphan.

"Oliver!", the musical held over from last year, returned to the Top Hat Theater stage on November 8, 9, 16, and 17. Cast parts and stage positions were opened to the Civic Theater to compensate for the lack of interest within the school.

IN HER PORTRAYAL OF A WITCH Lynne Fleischer practices her part in the children's play "Woodland Christmas."

understanding through travel, tutoring

Hot sticky days will no longer bother students and faculty. The air-conditioning installation was welcomed by those waiting for its coming.

Opportunity knocked at the doors of several Morton students this year during Easter vacation. Along with pupils from Highland and Clark, those who experienced two years of Spanish at Morton qualified to tour the colorful sites of southern Spain. Clark also sponsored a trip to London and Paris. Eight MHS students helped fill the plane seats.

Seventeen MHS students journeyed to Washington, D.C. during Thanksgiving break. Historical places and events filled the four adventurous days.

Needing individual attention, area elementary students were aided by volunteer tutors. For the second consecutive year Gail Hiduke sponsored this service on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Yellow barricades, a loud speaker and a gathering of pupils helped transform the parking lot into a temporary race track. The second annual bike race was separated into two divisions, bikes having five or more speeds and those with speeds of three or less. Victorious contestants received trophies according to their specific division.

COMPARING SCHOOL POLICIES, exchange students from E.C. Roosevelt and Griffith join in discussion with MHS hosts.

TWO HOURS OF PLAYTIME a week, forfeited by first grader P. Knapp, allows her to be tutored by M. Johnson.

ENTERTAINED BY GYPSIES, students visiting Spain entered a cave in Granada to view the colorful dances.

Peals of laughter, tears of joy express

TEARFULLY REFLECTING upon four years of high school, Yolanda Groves displays the feelings of reminiscent grads.

They had first come to this gym four years ago. Students came as freshmen to play basketball or to folk dance. Days as a high school pupil seemed so new and different, maybe even a little bewildering. Friendships were made, some were broken. Students followed the sound of a distant drummer as they journeyed the four-year road. Individuals explored different paths while their characters matured with each new experience. Nevertheless, students began their MHS education together.

On June 8, 467 seniors assembled in that immense gym for the last time, but they did not play volleyball or soccer. They solemnly filed in under the eyes of relatives. Pam Keppel acted as valedictorian; Donna Eichelberger represented the salutatorian. Pupils and guests listened to the class creed and Reverend Eastwood's speech. Graduation did not seem a reality. Some students had counted the days; others wished it was just beginning.

With their diploma in hand graduates realized that the unpredictable high school years were now over. Another bridge had been crossed — there was no turning back. Tears and hugs mingled with happiness on that final night together.

FILLED WITH PRIDE AND HOPE, seniors received their diplomas as parents, teachers and friends looked on. Graduates had long-awaited the event; but many will miss the activities that they experienced during high school.

Rows of desks but an informal atmosphere encouraged discussions of current issues in an elective course headed by Mr. Hodson.

A lonely figure in an empty room, Pat McCormick steals time from a study hall for solitary work.

Alone in front of the class, the student attempts to deliver the speech which experience has inspired him to write. Taking a test consists of an individual action, but preparation was a combined effort — the student's attentiveness to subject presentation by the instructor. Education demands much of the student's time, but enrichment continues long after he has left the school building. He enters the world, which proves to be the "real" classroom. Increasing knowledge is a perpetual manner existing when persons exchange ideas and share experiences, discoveries.

Advanced history pupils study poverty

ADDING FINAL TOUCHES Dan Dowling completes construction of his pyramid in World History I class.

"ALL WRAPPED UP" In ticker tape, Econ student Mary Jo Mauger tallies the ups and downs of the stock market.

DEEP IN CONCENTRATION Curt Lukoshus, Dave Gilga, Kevin Boyle and Steve Kerner listen carefully to classmates' views in a discussion on crime. Small group debates, held daily, gave students a chance to talk about current events.

existing in the U.S.

Heated discussions took place in advanced history classes as pupils studied American poverty. Some students felt there should be no welfare program in the United States while others strongly advocated expanding it. Reading "Crisis in the Classroom" pupils discovered the drawbacks of the American educational system and became acquainted with informal teaching methods. Students also researched prisons, organized crime and "Boss" Daley.

Analyzing the powers of the three branches of government, seniors related terms and principles to current issues. Economics pupils viewed man's unlimited wants in comparison to limited resources. Students also examined the stock market.

World history pupils, meeting course requirements, made replicas of pyramids, medieval costumes and geographical charts during their studies of ancient civilizations. Students presented original skits based on the crusades and the feudal system.

U.S. history students learned about Americans' fight for freedom and evolvement of this country into its present state. Locations of various countries drifted through Geography pupils' minds as they attempted to label maps from memory.

HIS FACE DISTORTED, senior Jim Matthews becomes frustrated as he studies for Mr. Moorehead's Government final.

WITH THE WORLD ON HIS MIND, Geography student John Kayden contemplates earthly problems in class.

Females enter male-dominated classes

TO DEMONSTRATE THE POWER of an automobile, senior Don McHenry ignites the engine as classmates Thad Rollins, Steve Tomasula and Glen Harris look on.

Expanding to bigger rooms, Morton's shop teachers prepared for a larger enrollment and an increasing demand for vocational training. Also, this year girls could be seen sitting in shop classes.

Down on their knees, woodshop students struggled to clean the floor of sawdust accumulated during project construction. During class, students designed shelves, bowls, chessboards and paddles. After receiving grades, the projects served as gifts or decorations in the home. Noise from drills, grinders and buffers could be heard as metal shop pupils met numerous course requirements.

Electronics pupils thought ahead and sketched the rooms desired in their model home. Deciding the locations of circuits, pupils diagramed the electrical wiring needed in the house. Mechanical drawing students exercised precision as they drew different views of three-dimensional figures. Crooked lines and inaccuracies lowered students' grades.

Careful to observe every detail, power mechanics pupils strained their necks to see their instructor point out the parts of a car engine. Students learned to repair various engines on their own, thereby avoiding costly repair bills in the future.

WITH STEADY HANDS senior John Hluska carefully attaches a circuit during a lab session in electronics.

DISCOVERING THE ERROR
senior Mike Kallok calls on junior Barb Johnson to correct the mistake in mechanical drawing class.

BEFORE THE INITIAL CUT junior Jim Presley checks the position of the lead pipe during metal shop.

Lab students take field trip to Chicago;

EACH SWING OF THE WEIGHT counts as junior Denise Hatfield times the period of the pendulum.

Proceeding through the endless exhibits at the Museum of Science and Industry, chemistry students kept busy while enjoying themselves during a field trip. Biology classes dissected various animals, discovering similarities between humans and other creatures of the animal world.

Production of fire from sawdust and water fascinated chemistry students. Through experimentation and class discussion, pupils learned the reasoning behind this supposed "magic". Secrets of electricity became common knowledge to advanced students enrolled in physics class.

Activities in biology ranged from studying amoeba under high-powered microscopes to performing exploratory surgery on frogs and mice.

Dissecting a cat, an exciting endeavor for many, resulted in an upset stomach for some of the weaker Zoology students. Detailed study of the anatomy and life-style of the maple leaf and other plant life comprised the curriculum in Botany.

Psychology students recognized the value of conditioned response through the study of Pavlov's experiment with his famous dog. Physical Science dealt with the fundamentals of all sciences.

AMIDST THE FLAMES juniors Dave Simchak and Marlan Stark experiment mixing hydrogen peroxide with sawdust. Many experiments took place in chemistry as pupils studied chemical compounds, protons and the elements.

biology pupils examine body functions

HEARTBEATS OF A RAT, recorded on an electric kymograph, speed up as juniors Cindi Magurany and Pat Lauerman apply a saline solution.

"ALL THUMBS" when it comes to changing a typewriter ribbon, Jackie Grzych has a little trouble untangling it.

Notehand prepares pupils for lectures

Instead of saying "chay-gay-ish and ith" students oftentimes became confused and said "ch-g-sh and th" during their oral spelling of words in Notehand, a new course offered at Morton this year. Pupils learned to recognize words easily after reading and writing them. During the last few weeks students played bingo and football in Notehand and tested their skills by taking notes on lectures given by classmates and visiting speakers. Pupils received scholarship grades on a pass-fail basis.

Trying to increase their words-per-minute, students jammed keys together during timed writings in Personal Typing class. Many pupils became frustrated while using carbon paper as they attempted to erase mistakes without smudging up their work.

Preparing themselves for college math courses pupils taking analysis studied complex number properties. Being tested on writing proofs, geometry students realized the value of hours spent memorizing theorems and postulates. Pupils utilized the protractor and compass in the construction of geometric figures. Advanced algebra students had a more difficult time visualizing and sketching three dimensional graphs with x,y,z coordinate planes than those graphs with x,y coordinate planes.

Pupils express originality through skits

SUMMONED BEFORE THE COURT of seniors Kathy Prendergast and Jack Kerr, Bill Oyster gives the answer to his queen in The Wife of Bath's Tale, a story studied in English Lit.

Dressed as knights, fairies, and princesses, English Lit students performed quick costume changes as they presented skits of CANTERBURY TALES. Many experienced stage fright at the hands of their peers while others "stole the show."

Pupil's first speech in sophomore English proved to be more difficult to give than anticipated. Some students got the last-minute shakes. When their turn at the podium came, parts of the speech, memorized before the bathroom mirror, slipped their minds. After numerous practices before an audience students began to feel more at ease.

Making a long-distance call to Odysseus to find out where he has been, Penelope becomes dissatisfied with her husband's answers. She finally hangs up, but not before she expounds the virtues of Women's Lib. Many such conversations took place in English I studies of THE ODYSSEY.

Junior English pupils, scattered throughout libraries during classes and after school hours, struggled to meet term paper deadlines.

All English classes stressed correct writing techniques and grammar. Journalism, dramatics and speech served as elective English courses.

SUSPENDED BETWEEN TWO CHAIRS in his self-hypnotic trance, senior Dave Smoot proves to his classmates that anybody can be hypnotized. Encouraged to work individually, Comp 8 students developed their own specific skills and talents.

X MARKS THE SPOT in dramatics during an operation performed by surgeons Debbi Hiers, Scott Carey, Terry Ervin and Lyman Bond.

Spanish students design holiday cards

PLEASED WITH HIS WORK German student Scott Warner takes one last look before closing the door.

Discovering hidden artistic talents, Spanish students struggled to glue together scraps of paper as they designed holiday cards. Finished products brightened the room and provided a warm atmosphere for study. Greetings of "Feliz Navidad" could be heard as pupils celebrated Christmas in Spanish style. Even though it took longer than expected to break the Santa Claus pinata, pupils still rushed to grab the candy that fell to the floor.

Illustrations of Charlie Brown and his friends, accompanied by German translations of their quotes, served as decorations in German classes. Students furnished the necessary Christmas ornaments to trim the holiday tree during after-school hours.

Christmas voices filled the Yuletide air while French students attempted to harmonize. Pupils prepared homemade delicacies, such as creme puffs, to be sampled by their classmates. One outside activity included a visit to a selected restaurant to acquaint students with French foods.

Besides learning the correct pronunciation of a language, pupils studied the country's history and customs. Due to a lack of student interest Latin was dropped from the curriculum this year.

PLUNGED INTO DARKNESS, senior Jan McTaggart gets blindfolded by Cathy Emond as preparation before breaking a pinata during a Spanish 7 class. Students engaged in various traditional activities during the holiday season.

Choral groups carol on station WJOB

Straining to hear the music piped to their rooms, students listened to Morton's vocal groups carol over radio station WJOB. Singers gave nervous and humorous replies while being interviewed by the disc jockey during breaks between the songs.

Before becoming a member of a specific vocal group, pupils learned fundamentals in girls' or boys' chorus. After one semester a student could try out for the musical group he wished to join. Tryouts proved a frightening experience to some while others breezed through them with no trouble.

Much hard work and practice went into the holiday assemblies and programs presented by the choral department. Students designed and constructed all stage sets and props during after-school hours. Singers spent lunch hours and study halls polishing up newly learned Christmas songs.

Silently listening to the visiting monks chant Gregorian Hymns, Music History pupils thought of days long ago when culture and learning centered on religion. Students analyzed the evolution of music through the ages of civilization.

In Music Theory, an accelerated music study, many pupils found it difficult to compose songs. The beat of familiar tunes clouded their minds as they attempted to create an original sound.

"ON THE NIGHT BEFORE CHRISTMAS . . ." students from the choral department await the arrival of Santa Claus.

"CAUGHT WITH THE GOODS," senior Debbie Banka decorates Christmas cookies during foods class.

TABLESPOON IN HAND, freshman Nancy Lochlusi learns the technique of correct measurement in Foods I.

Sewers use suede, fake fur in projects

Making purses and vests of suede, students used their imagination in designing original creations. Yards of fake fur, transformed into winter coats, kept advanced sewers dressed in current styles. Experienced pupils stayed busy during the first semester by working on three-piece outfits.

First-year sewers became frustrated while attempting to match the seams of outfits made of plaid material. A fraction of an inch difference could result in a lower grade. Students spent time ripping out puckered zippers and crooked hems.

Shouts of pain could be heard coming from Room 142 as students from Boys' Foods jabbed their fingers while sewing on buttons. Most of the trouble came with threading the needle. In the kitchen cooking a cherry pie required two days, one to mix the ingredients and the second day to bake and eat it. Boys also learned proper etiquette.

Enticing aromas drifted through the halls as girls prepared various meals. Popping the potatoes in the oven one hour before broiling their steaks, the girls carefully budgeted their time. Aspiring housewives learned techniques to aid them in homemaking and interior decorating in Family Living.

ENGROSSED IN HER PROJECT, senior Sue Mitchell contemplates the next step in sewing her outfit.

Physical education strengthens muscles;

IN GOOD FORM freshman Cathy Gootee maintains her balance as she straddles the horse in gymnastics.

DETERMINED TO ELUDE OPPONENTS Robert Figuly and Jamie Rock, Ken Parks maintains control of the ball.

students develop skills in various fields

Echos of "one-two-three" resounded through the gym as students practiced warm-up exercises. Loosening up before performing regular class activities prevented pulled muscles. Pupils developed skills in various athletic fields such as swimming, gymnastics, volleyball and basketball.

Running through the showers in their bathing suits, swimmers cleaned up before jumping in the pool. Once in, pupils bobbed up-and-down to warm themselves and condition their bodies to the water. Students worked to perfect swimming strokes and diving techniques. After meeting specific requirements, swimmers could earn their beginner and advanced Red Cross ratings during class time.

Balance and agility proved to be necessary to pupils who mastered the parallel bars and balance beam in gymnastics. Students skilled on the trampoline executed front and back flips.

In volleyball, instructors stressed teamwork as pupils learned to spike the ball to their opponents and pass to their teammates. Under pressure from opponents many students found it hard to control the ball during basketball games. Fierce team competition accounted for low scoring games.

TEAMWORK enables freshmen Cathleen Snyder and Cheryl Broach to volley the ball to their opponent, Vicki Verbluck.

Art students create individual projects

EACH STROKE OF THE BRUSH counts as senior Phil Carlson concentrates on completing his painting.

Students in art classes independently pursued various individual endeavors. Formless clay took on the shape of a definite figure. With the aid of paints, an aspiring artist worked to transform a blank canvas into an interpreted painting.

Looking through magazines for words and pictures, students attempted to make collages. A meaningless bit of paper combined with insignificant scraps became an expressive piece of art.

Studies of different artistic forms sometimes supplemented actual creation. Students learned to appreciate various art techniques and applied them to their own work. Eventually a budding artist began to develop his own individual style.

Permanent stains on clothes became a sight for mothers of art students. Artists acquired spotted hands and arms as a result of working with paints. Students forgot their messes when a new project, diligently worked on, reached completion.

Throughout four years of courses students delved into the many aspects of art. The students' talents flowed into various channels. Comparing his work with his classmates, a pupil became acquainted with different artistic perspectives.

YOUNG ARTISTS must learn to adjust and prepare the equipment before proceeding with their art projects. Mr. Waring, art Instructor, demonstrates the proper use of the easel to junior Barney Siffer and senior Greg Culpak.

Students, band, Association officers, Mr. Becker and President Bruce Roquet add to the success of the Inaugural Assembly.

Choirs spent hours practicing before they entertained the audience during the holiday assembly.

Clubs once played a pertinent role in school life. Since the cry for individuality rose, many students have drifted from group to personal pastimes. Interested pupils still found their way to various activities keeping many groups alive. A service club brought happiness to older folks when the students remembered them during the Christmas season. Working close within the student government, members gained an understanding of the political "ins and outs". Although there prevailed a lack of school spirit, devoted Governors still turned out to boost the teams.

Association council provides Govs with

Taking turns at the typewriter, volunteers worked over a week during study halls to type the 2201 names shown in the Student Directory. Frustration prevailed in the Ass'n Office as typing eraser and paper changed location after every hour.

Exchange pupils from Lake Central toured Morton with assigned student guides. Morton reps, in turn, visited L.C., attending classes and a council meeting. Exchanges enabled Govs to see how another school functions. It also gave representatives an opportunity for making new friendships.

Chosen Cabinet and committee members met infrequently with the administration to discuss relevant problems. An often-mentioned item was the proposal for a Student Center. It remained in the "talk stage" as difficulties continued to arise.

Attempting to break the lull between Sectionals and spring break, the Association president planned the first homeroom basketball tourney. Over 450 entrants readily accepted the challenge of competing against classmates. Scheduled games included meets between the best team of each grade. Winners received homeroom trophies and individual ribbons. Homeroom 11-15 won the school championship.

Pupils strive for NHS, NFL qualification

Anxiously awaiting for the names of those who qualified for NHS, pupils breathed a sigh of relief when they received the congratulatory note in home-room. Three years of study and hard work had paid off for juniors in the upper five percent of their class and seniors in the upper ten percent. Proud parents accompanied their children to initiation ceremonies held at the school's auditorium.

Striving to learn techniques for meaningful communication, students involved themselves in NFL. Proving their speech ability, NFL members brought home two first place trophies from the Highland Invitational Debate Tournament. After winning first place at the Purdue Invitational Legislative Assembly sophomore Barb Griggs journeyed downstate to compete for further honors.

Promotion of an international dinner, held to encourage ethnic pride in the community, occupied the time of some Foreign Language Club members. Proud feelings could be sensed as area residents supplied goods and gave each other a helping hand in displaying their own particular food.

Mortonite staff conveys student ideas

Bi-weekly editions of the MORTONITE reported school news besides serving as a calendar of events. Through this paper readers become acquainted with things which surrounded other students' lives. Students needed to understand that participation was not limited to the staff but extended to the student body. "L'il Guv'nor" and "Letters to the Editor" gave anyone a chance to express himself.

For two weeks Editor Carolyn Curiel and Make-up Editor Debbie Neely attended the Journalism Institute at Indiana University in Bloomington. They studied copy reading and layout design. Unable to attend institute, Debbie Somerville served on the MORTONITE staff as assistant editor. In charge of overall production these girls checked assigned work before allowing it to be sent to the printer.

Planning an attractive page describes the responsibility of the page editors. They must design the page so that each article fits properly.

Reporters composed the majority of the MORTONITE staff. These students kept an open ear for any interesting school news. Responsibility also lied with them to finish their topics for written articles within set dates, assigned by the editor.

MORTONITE'S 1971-72 staff decided to add a little entertainment to their work. They established a "Hall of Fame" honoring those students who contributed to the production of the paper.

Since all issues were free, the staff sponsored a "Mr. Ugly" Dance to finance publication costs.

Top Hat staff organizes extra pages

Working on Morton's TOP HAT took a great deal of co-operation. Based on social and academic functions, the yearbook contains captured moments of school life. Student and faculty involvement gave the staff a basis for building the annual.

Yearbook procedures were taught to Michelle Kik, TOP HAT'S copy editor, and Gail Hiduke, layout editor, during a two-week summer journalism institute. While at Indiana University in Bloomington they studied a variety of techniques and listened to evening lectures. These editors checked and approved all work given to them by section editors.

Helping to set the framework of opening section and to ease the strain of the editors, Pam LaVelle acted as contributing editor. To learn her duties Pam attended Ohio's Kent State for one week.

Each section editor and her assistants must meet required deadlines in order to complete the book. Failure of one section to compile information means delay of the entire publication.

to view 'Fiddler on the Roof' premiere

Observing teachers during class hours FTA participants traveled to Caldwell and Miller Elementary Schools to view teaching and lesson planning firsthand. Club members rode to the Loop to see the premiere of "Fiddler on the Roof."

Incoming Morton students felt welcomed when members of MITS offered a building tour of the school. The club served a breakfast for new pupils during second semester. MITS members traveled to elementary schools to present a brief explanation of the different functions at Morton. MITS headed the drive, in which several clubs participated, selling stuffed animals. Profits went into a fund to buy a fully-equipped wheelchair for a MHS student.

Making someone happy, the Home Economics Club attended St. Ann's Nursing Home greeting the elderly with a Christmas party. Members made small party favors to create a Yuletide atmosphere. Departing from Morton enroute to Valparaiso University, Home Ec Club members visited domestic classes.

Future Secretaries of America promoted interest in the secretarial field. On FSA Day, senior girls were placed with secretaries for one day. Here the students observed daily working habits.

Spurred on by the dread of shinning a spotlight on the wrong person or not raising the curtain on cue, the production staff worked behind the scenes to ready stage, lighting and backdrops for all pep rallies, plays and assemblies.

Carrying out duties that varied from organizing files to painting settings, the first semester stage crew consisted of only nine members.

Discontinuing the somewhat "worn-out" Theater Guild candy sales, this year the club decided to support theater productions by selling fruit cakes. They also planned several theater trips but never attended any play productions.

Reasons for the suspension of the Thespian Troupe included delinquent dues and not enough eligible members to satisfy the national headquarters.

Producing four plays in approximately eight months required more work from the Drama Department than met the viewers' eyes. Scores of students stood up on stage to recite lines while the directors tackled the job of casting. Lines then had to be memorized and the blocking worked out.

Set designers and costume crews budgeted time. Despite broken needles and machines, costume crew designed and made 60 outfits for the "Oliver!" production. Set designers worked diligently to complete the huge revolving "Oliver!" set needed to portray the dark, dingy slums of London.

A.V. Club stages entertainment nights

Volunteering their services, A.V. Club members operated, cleaned and repaired various kinds of projection equipment during study halls. A semester of training for their first job did not help new members once they got inside the classroom. Trying to act experienced under the watchful eyes of the teacher and class, trainees usually got so nervous that they dropped the film can, could not thread the projector properly or wound the film upside down. After they finished their first assignment, trainees returned to the A.V. room to relate their experiences to others and prepare themselves for their next job. An annual spring car wash helped members raise money to buy stereo equipment.

Displaying their creativity on the library windows, Photo Club members composed picture stories that focused on school events. Members used the new camera, purchased with club dues, to take the pictures and developed them after school.

Through experimentation projects, Electronics Club members familiarized themselves with circuits and transistors. The boys sponsored a candy sale which enabled them to purchase additional electronic equipment to use in future experiments.

Morton band works for new uniforms

Purchasing new uniforms became the dream of many band members. Proceeds from a candy drive and spring concert went towards the new apparel.

During the excitement of the football season the marching band provided half-time entertainment. Their musical presentations consisted of a marching routine to the tune of an appropriate selection. Pom-pom girls performed with the band.

Shiny brass instruments and the thundering beat of drums indicated the presence of the pep band. Composed of volunteer members, this group played the national anthem during basketball season.

Stage band practiced to acquire the rhythm and tempo of contemporary music. They received a second-place rating after performing at a contest that took place in Hobart, Indiana.

After a day of "downing" lemon juice, pupils sang several diverse selections for the Northern Indiana State Band Orchestra and Vocal Contest. Made up of the finest voices in the school, Concert Choir acted as the core for all concerts and choral assemblies. Thrilled choir participants viewed posted letters of praise pertaining to performances, despite a bass section of only four members.

Wayfarers, performers of popular folk and some rock music, sang frequently for banquets or dinners. After school on Mondays the group discussed different techniques and song format while striving to insert touches of originality.

Amid shouts of congratulations from choir members, the newly formed Girls' Swing Group received first place medals for performances at state and city contests. Material consisted of popular music and simple dance routines. Governaires, singing almost all traditional music accompanied by piano, participated in choral programs. The group placed second in the solo and ensemble contest.

Upperclass skits reveal athletes' antics

Seniors and juniors portrayed the clownish absurdities of football and basketball players during pep rallies held to boost team support.

Throughout football season Booster Club officers designated sections at games for the cheering blocks. They arranged for transportation to away games, including 14 buses for the trip to Elkhart.

Annual dances sponsored to honor "Mr. Football" and "Mr. Basketball" composed a main part of Booster Club's activities. New to Morton this year, the Powder Puff football game enabled girls to learn the techniques of this male sport. After two weeks of practice, the game ended in a 6-6 tie.

GAA members built-up their treasury selling photo wallets, night shirts, football jerseys and stationary. Athletically they participated in interscholastic volleyball and basketball games.

Frosh cheerleaders exclude substitutes

Expressions of anticipation could be seen on girls' faces while they performed their practiced cheers. Selecting the freshman cheerleading squad resulted in the elimination of the usual two substitutes. Because tryouts occurred late in the football season, the frosh squad cheered during basketball games and at pep rallies to increase spirit.

Bank depositors' contributions to a bake sale enabled the varsity squad to attend cheerleading camp at Vincennes University. Sensations of rivalry filled the air during the vigorous week as the girls competed against other cheerleaders.

Football season began and the cheerleaders sponsored a dance and pep rally. Excitement grew as students dreamed of a victorious season, yelling out shouts of encouragement. The sale of spirit buttons helped the cheerleaders raise funds.

With hopes of buying new uniforms and accessories, B-team squad sponsored a summer bake sale. Warm weather practices gave the girls time to make new cheers and contemplate ways to boost spirit.

marches with band

Journeying to Hanover Central on March 18 the pom-pom girls participated in their first drill-team contest. They performed an original dance routine to Issac Hayes' recording of "Shaft". Officials judged on overall appearance of the corps, alignment and difficulty of the choreographed routine.

Pom-pom girls and twirlers could be seen huddled together in a corner of the Riverside Grade School building. Attempting to stay warm, they waited to line up for the Hammond Christmas parade. Standing at attention with the band, the girls shivered uncontrollably when the cold wind swept past them. Even though their arms and legs began to ache after marching a few blocks, they kept smiles on their faces throughout the course of the parade.

"Go Gobs" yelled the twirlers and pom-pom girls as they marched around the field before pre-game activities. After greeting the opponent with "Hi Neighbor" they rushed into line for the school song. Racing back into band formation, the girls readied themselves for the national anthem. Tired, they wearily thought of half-time activities.

Joy of triumph mirrored in the face of C. Baxley enabled gathered fans to share in his ecstasy.

Missing that deciding lob in the tennis match does not hurt as much after the player receives congratulations from teammates for his actions in playing a "good" game. Students jumped in the stands with the first kickoff of the season. The bleachers spilled over with fans, but there was always room for one more. Ticker tape and toilet paper fluttered through the air. At the half the Governors held the lead. The fourth quarter proved to be tense, but with fifteen seconds to go a pass to a lone receiver was completed and the winning touchdown scored. Excited fans hugged their friends, slipping off the bleachers while tears of joy streamed down their cheeks. Gary West Side had been defeated by the Governors!

Overconfidence — everybody expected an easy win. However, the Clark Pioneers held Morton to a 19 point shut-out. E.C. Washington and Tech both put up good fights, but their attempts proved futile.

Homecoming brought Noll to Morton. Drizzling rain did not hamper the 18 point Gov victory. Larger crowds gathered to watch the Governors win their next two games over Gavitt and Whiting.

Finally, the biggest game of the season. Hammond High against Morton. Both teams sported undefeated records. Tension that had been building up drew to its peak. With no score posted at the half the Governors returned to tally the only touchdown of the game. Fans poured onto the field to congratulate the team. It had been a winning season.

Then there was Elkhart . . .

Frosh, B-team gridmen capture honors

RECOGNITION OF HIS TOUCHDOWN prompts junior Mike Shabaz to raise the football in triumph.

Stands littered from the previous night's game seated the few spectators. Below on the Mustang's scrub field, Morton's B-team played their first season game. The morning stillness made conversation between coach and team nearly audible. Under the hot sun the Governors managed to score three touchdowns, while Munster posted only six points in their four quarter attempt.

As the season progressed, the team went on to defeat Tech, E.C. Roosevelt and Gavit. These wins gained B-team another undefeated record.

Keeping up with varsity and B-team, this year's frosh football season ended victoriously.

As the freshmen ran out on the lighted field, anticipations of playing their first high school football game drew near to reality. Their fears mounted as the first quarter began. Before they knew it, however, the game ended. The scoreboard posted a 15 point victory for the Governors.

Eight more wins, the last over undefeated Hammond High, left MHS frosh number one in the area.

Tennis team finishes year at 5-5 mark;

Silence prevailed. No spirited fans gathered to boost the morale. Yet the 1971 tennis team managed to end conference play in a tie for second place. Players sweated to compile a 5-5 season mark.

Beginning the year with only one returning letterman, junior Dave Rush, might have seemed a major handicap. With the help of coaching and individual determination, new players mastered the game.

Racketmen broke two records during their season. For the first time in seven years the Governors overcame Gavitt. Also, though defeated by HHS, the team prevented the usual shut-out by winning one of the five matches against them.

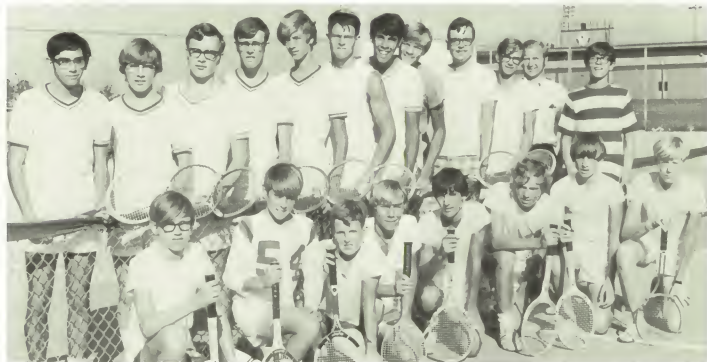

Mark York, a junior, and Chuck Brandner, a sophomore, finished with the best record in doubles. Together they won eleven matches while losing only three. They were also champs in the number one doubles of conference play. The conference tourney, held October 11 through 15, found seniors Frank Benton and Gary Chepregi listed as runners-up.

Teammates elected Frank Benton Most Valuable Player. Jack Kerr served as the team captain.

Govs overcome Munster in last game

Cheering fans watched as the starting five took their positions on the court. With the referee's whistle the two centers jumped for the ball and the first game of the season got underway.

Individual talents blended into teamwork as the Governors dribbled, passed and sank the shots. A tied score, opening the fourth quarter, gave both squads an equal chance; but Highland maintained the lead when the final buzzer sounded.

After a win over Lake Central, Morton faced Griffith. A close game all the way, both teams posted identical scores at the end of the fourth period. Overtime, however, enabled the Panthers to get an edge on the Govs and win the contest. By later defeating Gary Wirt, MHS' mark stood at 3-5.

Many fans who had discontinued to back a losing team missed the cager's victory over Hobart. Down by 11 at the end of the first quarter, the Brickies dropped farther behind as the Governors played one of their better games of the season.

Morton marksmen demonstrated their capabilities once again while up against Andrean. The cagers shot past the 59ers in the second period, giving them an 11 point half-time advantage. The final score reflected another Governor victory.

MHS defeated Munster in their final regular season game. With sectionals a week away the team had six more days of practice to look forward to!

compete with Clark in sectional playoff

All week students had been painting signs and decorating homerooms to boost the spirit for sectionals. A pep rally held in the gym enabled fans to wish the basketball team "good luck."

Finally, after what seemed ages, Tuesday night arrived. The buses, packed with team supporters, proceeded to the Civic Center. Once inside a cheering block took shape in the designated area.

As the two teams came on the floor the fans went wild. Morton got the tip off, made a basket and took the lead. They defeated Whiting 55-48.

Friday night found the Governors up against Gavit. This time the Gladiators got the first basket. They sank three more shots before Morton cagers posted their initial two points. Disappointment on the faces of the MHS fans soon turned to joy as the Gavs fought back to hold a four point lead at the half. Tension filled the last few minutes of the game as Gavit brought the score to 72-70. Morton, however, managed to hang on and end it 74-70.

Saturday night — Morton vs. Clark. Coach Marcinek had led MHS to the final game. The Gavs held an early lead but the Pioneers soon took over. Four quarters later Clark received the sectional trophy. Echoed in the background could be heard the chant of MHS fans — "We're proud of our team!"

B-team cagers defeated Bishop Noll for the second time of the season in the Holiday Tourney held December 28-29. This triumph gave the marksmen a boost as they succeeded in attaining three consecutive victories. Including the upsets over Hobart and Whiting, it comprised their longest winning streak. Two games later B-team overcame Gavitt in their biggest but final win of the season. They completed their term with a 5-15 mark.

Cagers snatch top rank in conference

Frosh cagers grabbed top honors in their conference by completing an impressive 12-3 record.

Off to a good start, the squad had been successful in their first five attempts. The sixth opponent, Gavitt, led by one point when the buzzer sounded; the Governors had their first taste of defeat. Tolleston, with a two point advantage when time ran out, gave MHS its second loss of the season.

Determined to win, the roundballers overcame Hammond High, then blasted Tech in a 31 point victory. The following week they fell to ECW.

With skill and teamwork the freshman squad defeated Tech, Whiting and Bishop Noll to capture the Hammond Invitational Tourney crown.

Two wrestlers met in the center of the mat then shook hands. The whistle blew and the match got underway. Seconds later both opponents came down and the real demonstration of talent began.

Between groans and cheers, relatives, friends and other onlookers yelled heedless instructions to the wrestlers throughout the contest. The minutes ticked away and before long the buzzer sounded.

Beginning the season with a loss to Gavit put the grapplers in a slump. Finally, however, after three more losses and a tie, Morton came out of it and won three consecutive matches against E.C. Roosevelt, Clark and Whiting. They fell to Portage by a big margin but later beat Andean by 36 points. Their overall season record stood at 5-4-1, but their conference mark ended at 3-3-1.

Sectional champ John Vandenbemden and junior Jay Gollner represented Morton at the wrestling regionals this year in Gary Wirt's gym. There John finished third in the heavyweight division and Jay took second place in his weight class.

Most Valuable went to John Vandenbemden with Dave Smoot and Jay Gollner voted as co-captains.

Hammond High, the first of the five, defeated Morton but only by three points. E.C. Washington, Bishop Noll, Tech and E.C. Roosevelt all fell to the Governors within the next four weeks.

second straight year, exhibit 11-2 mark

With sectionals only a week past, the swimmers headed back to the pool to begin practice for the following season. Early in fall, after the start of the new school year, they met in the natatorium in the morning to get back in shape after the long summer. Once into full-swing swimmers strived to perfect their strokes and increase speed.

Experience and desire helped the tankmen in their most successful season. Cheers from the scattered spectators resounded in the pool area as the Gavs opened the year with an 11-point victory over Tech. After eight more wins Morton participated in the Munster Relays where they took a first.

There had been no losses recorded against Morton until they faced Griffith. The following week their second and final defeat came against Noll.

Getting back on the winning side, MHS overcame Highland in the best and most exciting meet of the year. Morton tankmen took a first in every event except the 50-yard and 200-yard freestyles. This boosted the team's morale as they proceeded to take fourth place in the swimming sectionals.

Senior Nick Pitzel qualified for state and finished thirteenth in the diving competition there. Team members voted Rick Dodson and Pat Higgins Co-captains and David Misanik Most Valuable.

IN ROUGH WATER D. Misanik practices the execution of his backstroke. Tankmen drilled five months to improve times.

Scattered around the football field, team members sat resting or worked out while they waited for their particular event to begin.

Runners lined up on the track. Ready, set, the gun sounded and they sprinted to the finish line. One by one the long jumpers headed toward the box of sand with hopes of surpassing their longest recorded mark or at least taking first place.

'Cloud 9', a big white billowy cushion, provided pole vaulters with a safe landing after their sometimes successful, sometimes futile, attempt to clear the bar and stay in competition. High jumpers at the other end of the field leaped farther into the air with each rise of the bar.

After seven and a half times around the track the two-mile distance runners put forth their last surge of energy to make it to the finish line. The few spectators cheered during the last quarter mile to give their man an extra boost.

When the relay teams finished their laps and each school's points had been totaled, faces mirroring both triumph and defeat could be seen leaving the field. The first meet had been a good meet for Morton. They finished in second place. Later in the year, at sectionals, they placed fifth, then proceeded to complete the year at 5-6.

B-team takes first in city championship

After placing second in the first two meets of the season, B-team trackmen proceeded to take a first place, accumulating more points than both E.C. Washington and E.C. Roosevelt. The next three attempts found Morton again taking seconds. In the City Frosh-Soph meet they placed third as they did in the Lake Shore Conference competition.

MHS cindermen fell to fourth at the Clark Relays. In the City Frosh meet, with only freshmen participating, they finished in first place.

Determination aids thinlies in victories

As the shot pierced the silence, the runners sprinted off. To the few spectators it seemed like mass confusion. Soon the leaders took their places out in front, leaving the others behind.

Hard practice over the long summer proved worthwhile for the Morton thinlies as shown by a 7-3 record. Their first meet, against Merrillville, shattered all hopes of an undefeated season. Despite a bad start, the cross country team came back to win seven of the nine remaining contests.

Coach Russ Marcinek headed the team this year. Team members chose Chuck Baxley as Most Valuable Player and Dave Villarreal as captain.

OUT IN FRONT, seniors D. Villarreal and D. Culp lead the way for the other runners in the Hammond City Meet.

receive eligibility to earn school letters

Two teams gathered on Morton's home field for the first game of the 1971 soccer season. The 11 starters for both sides prepared for the upcoming contest with a little practice on the sidelines. Minutes later the ball rolled and flew as it bounced off the feet and heads of players. With both coaches watching, Hammond High defeated the Govs.

Discouraged, but not giving up, MHS kickers overcame their next four opponents. Tech, the third of the four, scored one goal; but Morton maintained the lead after tallying four points. The other three Governor matches ended in shut-outs.

Next on the roster, the Governors faced Hammond High for the second time — and for the second time they failed in their attempt against them.

With two contests remaining the team's mark stood at 4-2. After shutting-out both Clark and Gavit, however, two more wins had been recorded.

Ending the season Morton again played Gavit and Clark, this time in the play-offs. Allowing only the Gladiators to score against them, they defeated both teams for the third time that year.

Eligible team members received school letters instead of patches, as in previous years.

breaks record for consecutive victories

Both pitchers warmed up on the sidelines for the first contest of the season. As game time drew near, the Warriors took their positions on the field and a Governor walked to the plate. After 6½ innings, Bishop Noll emerged victorious.

Five days later at Hessville Park, Morton beat Gary West by four runs. This became the first of a 17 game winning streak — a new school record.

Cold winds forced spectators into their cars while Morton shut-out Lake Central. Warmer weather brought MHS fans to Hessville Park for a double-header against Calumet. The Governors scored a total of 18 points in the two contests.

Morton overcame Whiting in its first conference attempt. After winning the next eight games, the teams' ILSC record stood at 9-0.

Then, on the Governor's home field, crosstown rival Gavit crushed MHS' winning streak with a 6-1 score. Disheartened, the team lost to E.C. Washington the next day at Block Stadium. They came back to win three games after this, however, giving them a 20 win season, also a new school record.

E.C. Washington defeated Morton in the playoff game, which left MHS second in the conference.

SILHOUETTED AGAINST THE FIELD, Governor Coach Jack Georgas is captured in an aura of deep reflection.

Falling snow never ceased to be an attraction during lunch hours. Hungry friends stopped to join in pelting the "other side".

On a quiet afternoon Sharon Creekmore wandered through isolated halls checking with monitors.

Some students look back after their initial year of high school, others look back to remember four years. Pupils retrace days of happiness, oblivate the times of despair. No matter what the situation might have been, they are richer from the wisdom which they gained. Students cherish friendships they have made and remember the ones that did not go as well. But from them all, pupils have bettered themselves by furthering their understanding of people.

boost spirit amid apathetic schoolmates

Officers strived to bring together apathetic classmates with sign painting sessions, dress-up days and the wearing of cords. Disinterest fostered uninvolved reactions from most seniors.

Realizing that soon friends and teachers would be memories, seniors looked closer at one another during their final year. Different events brought on feelings of joy, grief, unity.

Homework, momentarily dismissed, enabled seniors to assemble the homecoming float. Emotions sparked happiness when special friends received the honor of being chosen queen candidates.

Exec Board tried to organize activities but met with little response from seniors. The first planned class activity also became the last.

During infrequent Tuesday meetings, students were advised of pertinent class news. Counselors notified seniors of graduation requirements.

After difficulty in obtaining material and ordering pants, seniors finally received cords. Cream skirts, culottes, slacks and green sweaters identified the few '72ers who chose to wear them.

Joyous laughter, sighs of relief, trickling tears will be contrasting aspects of graduation. Some seniors look to college or business careers; others will spend time questioning undecided futures. But all wonder — "where do we go from here?"

FIVE MINUTE BREAKS between classes give seniors Jerry Bocken, Larry Dmitruck, Greg Clarke and Neal Kaufman time to gaze at the girls going by the 'senior bench.'

FOOTBALL IN POSITION, junior class Secretary Bonnie Fowler practices for the Powder Puff game.

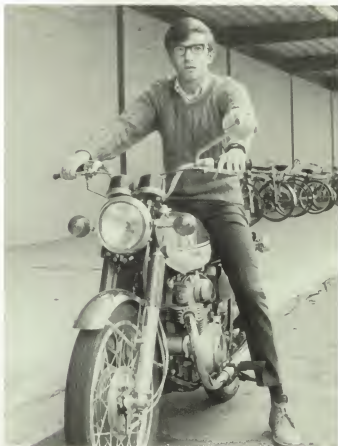

Class officers inherited many jobs, most important the planning of the junior-senior prom. Along with sponsors they spent valuable time organizing committees and making important decisions for the annual formal on May 13, 1972.

"Squeezing" ideas and effort from exec board members, the officers held many meetings before and after school. Juniors and their parents met to debate prom location and mode of transportation. After a travel compromise, prom-goers rode to Crete, Illinois, via cars or buses.

Juniors could be seen frequenting nearby restaurants after gaining the privilege of open campus. Purchase of class rings and a trip to Washington, D.C., and Williamsburg, Virginia, comprised major activities of the year for some juniors. Interested students also worked on the construction of the '73 Homecoming float depicting a frog.

With trembling hands college-bound juniors took the important SAT tests during spring in order to qualify for college entrance.

Some in the Class of '73 look to their last school year with the thought, "only one more time to go." Other juniors, anticipating college, think of the coming year as "one more time to live . . ."

ROARING AND READY, junior Vice-President Dave Vince arrives on time for a class meeting to discuss prom plans.

Class of '74 officers meet with sponsor

Monthly meetings for homeroom representatives and class officers gave sophomores a chance to speak out, voicing their opinions and disagreements on topics concerning their class. These gatherings, held in the morning, gave reps a chance to communicate with their class sponsor, Mr. Green.

Sophomores planned activities in an attempt to raise money for the class treasury. Two dances kept classmates and officers busy organizing committees and finalizing the sketchy preparation plans. Hoping for an opportunity to assist in the "Mass Hysteria" dances, student volunteers gathered after school, blowing up balloons to decorate the cafeteria. Those with creativity chose to design blacklight posters, using florescent paints in varied "wild" colors of blue, pink, green and yellow.

Representing sophomores spirit, signs labeled with "74's" and names of "artists" covered the cafeteria walls and hall bulletin boards.

Highlighting the year, administrative authorities decided to allow sophomores to purchase class rings a year early, thus giving them a few extra months time to wear their high school rings.

With the anxieties of being freshmen in the past, sophs had regarded their second year with less anticipation. Entering their junior year, the Class of '74 now look forward to becoming upperclassmen or a year of "perpetual change".

Speakers acquaint students with school

Warnings about attendance and tardiness mingled with greetings from administration during freshman orientation. Spiced with a tour of the building by Cabinet members, the exercises brought incoming frosh together on a warm day in September.

That "first time" experience brought feelings of excitement to freshmen as homecoming activities began. Moms bought food and "willingly" lent basements and garages for decoration gatherings. Dads watched their Fords and Chevys transformed into floats for the annual procession. Yelling to relatives and friends, freshmen rode in the parade tossing tissue flowers and candy.

Elected by classmates, a boy and girl presented a crown and roses to the Homecoming queen.

Cheerleading tryouts prompted freshman girls to get involved in leading class spirit. They came to tryouts despite sore muscles and shaky knees. Judges faced the problem of selecting only five cheerleaders from the many hopeful candidates. No freshman substitutes were chosen this year.

Some freshmen enjoyed becoming involved in class and school activities while others preferred to remain on the outside looking in. But for all of the freshmen it was "only the beginning. . . ."

SEEN THROUGH A WINDOW, freshman President Brett Luketic takes it upon himself to reassemble the totem pole. He is, of course, placing his class's 'head' on top.

Administrators contend with problems

ON THE PHONE Principal Mr. W. Winston Becker takes care of Governor business in his private office.

Concerned with vandalism, Mr. Becker "closed" social events until a better means of screening could be devised. Attempting to reach a compromise with students in regard to open dances, Mr. Becker and Mr. Mateja met with Cabinet members during lunch hours. Mr. Mateja organized the master calendar so that clubs and organizations could schedule dates.

Mr. Ruff, informing students of detentions, became a familiar sight in Morton's halls. Admits to see Mr. Ruff alarmed many pupils, but once inside his office they found he could be understanding.

Providing help to students with disordered second semester schedules, counselors dealt with "herds" of students stampeding to the personnel office. Overcrowded morning classes and disappointed students gave ample work to Morton's frenzied guidance group. Confused programs needed rectifying before students returned from the break.

Striving to aid students with speech defects, Miss Miller offered her services at Morton twice a week. Miss Diener and Mrs. Rotenberg taught handicapped pupils in the morning and afternoon.

Teachers extended their involvement with students past dismissal time. Some male teachers gave their hours on game nights to help collect tickets for Governor sport events. Other faculty members chaperoned activities and spent time working with students in various clubs and athletic teams.

Late night cups of coffee go down easier when served by a waitress, Mary Ellen George, who delights in smiling with customers.

Dependent upon the marketplace for school needs, Gregg Costa purchases academic aids.

Emerging through the glass doors the student blends in with the mass of Saturday shoppers, yet his individual desires reflect in merchandise carried by the storekeepers.

Besides being consumers, pupils travel to marketplaces to sell their own product — their availability to work where they are needed. When daily classes terminate, students become salesgirls, gas station attendants, waitresses, bagboys.

High School is a waste of time . . .

. . . unless you find a job that turns you on and makes good use of your education. Inland Steel wants only people who want to use everything they've learned in high school-and strongly desire to grow personally and in their chosen field.

Inland's future growth depends on the creativity and productivity of its people. If you want a really challenging opportunity to contribute-with the rewards and responsibilities that go with it-Inland wants to talk to you.

We need action-seeking graduates for opportunities in clerical . . . production . . . technical . . . and craft apprenticeship areas.

Think it over. If you have high aspirations and a good high school record, take time to find out about a career with us.

Dear Governors,

We did it! Your eyes behold 220 pages of pictures, captions and copy. Our job is done. For over a period of six months approximately 41 people have devoted over 9840 hours into this book's completion. Staffers worked not only their designated hours but also study halls, lunch hours and often late into the night. Once real, but now in the past, are the many headaches, tears and ideas that went into this annual collection.

Good feelings staff members experienced with this book's completion coupled with your personal enjoyment of the collection helps us portray that "no man is an island. . ."
